THE REPUBLIC OF CORTESIA DEL MAR
COMMON COURT
In the matter between:
TROLL_BEBEK
&
ALENARITH GROUP

CASE DETAILS

CASE NUMBER: 8
COURT: CommradePotatoe J
DATE: 9 March 2025 (GMT)

CASE TEXT:

CommradePotatoe:
Alright, its 1, and ice hasn't got back to me. @Troll_Bebek @Oko I'll hear this case if both of you are ready

Troll_Bebek:
ok
Good evening, I am submitting a case today based the advertisement our President @oko placed in unknown

IceCarim:
Yeah go ahead

CommradePotatoe:
thank you jeff, could you explain what your complaint is in regards to the advertisement also, am I correct in assuming a "dc" is a "double chest/dub"

Troll_Bebek:
The advertisement states that an individual will be paid 80,000 credits per doublechest of chetherite mined, however, when turning in the mined materials, I was informed that the advert was misworded, and it intended for stacks of chetherite blocks, not the chetherite item itself.

As the correction was not issued until the items were already turned in, and the reduced payment was issued, I feel this was false advertisement. Keep in mind, the advertisement still remains as the original wording, and has not been corrected to state blocks of chetherite. As a new-ish player, I was not aware that statement had another meaning, and was infact 9x the amount.

I believe that the original offer should be honored, and the president (and all future advertisements) should honor their wording, and it should be the creators mistake if they advertise something incorrect.

(I turned in 5 doublechests of chetherite)
@oko ehm President, your retort please :thumbsup~2: 🦅 🦅 🗣️

CommradePotatoe:
thank you, is that all for your opening statement?

Troll_Bebek:
I think so

CommradePotatoe:
@oko This court will welcome your opening statements whenever you are ready.

Oko:
The work order requested attaches the root thread here: Root Thread - Ore Exchange
This states each ore type and lists them as their respective item, in this case being Chetherite blocks. jeff was compensated by the cabinet for the respective deposit (at a rate of 1/9th to equate to its volume in chetherite blocks).

It is my belief that the post contains sufficient clarity for a competent player to understand the work order and fulfill it accordingly. It would be an undue responsibility of the cabinet to consider every possible misinterpretation of the work order and compensation scheme.
I believe the crux of this suit is the responsibility of which the court holds the dispatching authority of work orders to its (interpreted) word, and I believe this will determine the future of future cases regarding future contract and dispatcher law

CommradePotatoe:
thank you mrs president
I have noticed that the message there has been edited, For the courts sake, I will be subpoenaing the government for message edit records also, am I correct in my understanding that this contract was issued by the PA group and not the government?
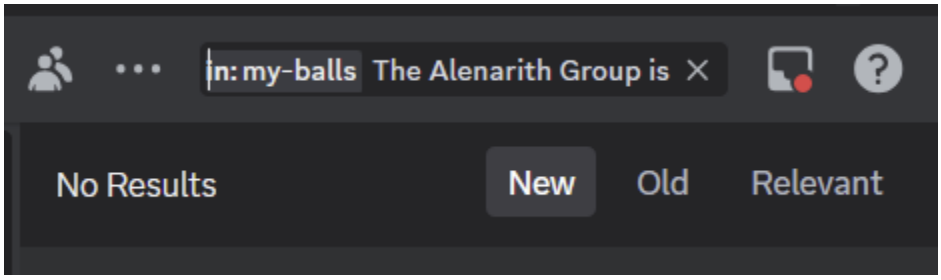
Sorry, Alenarith Group

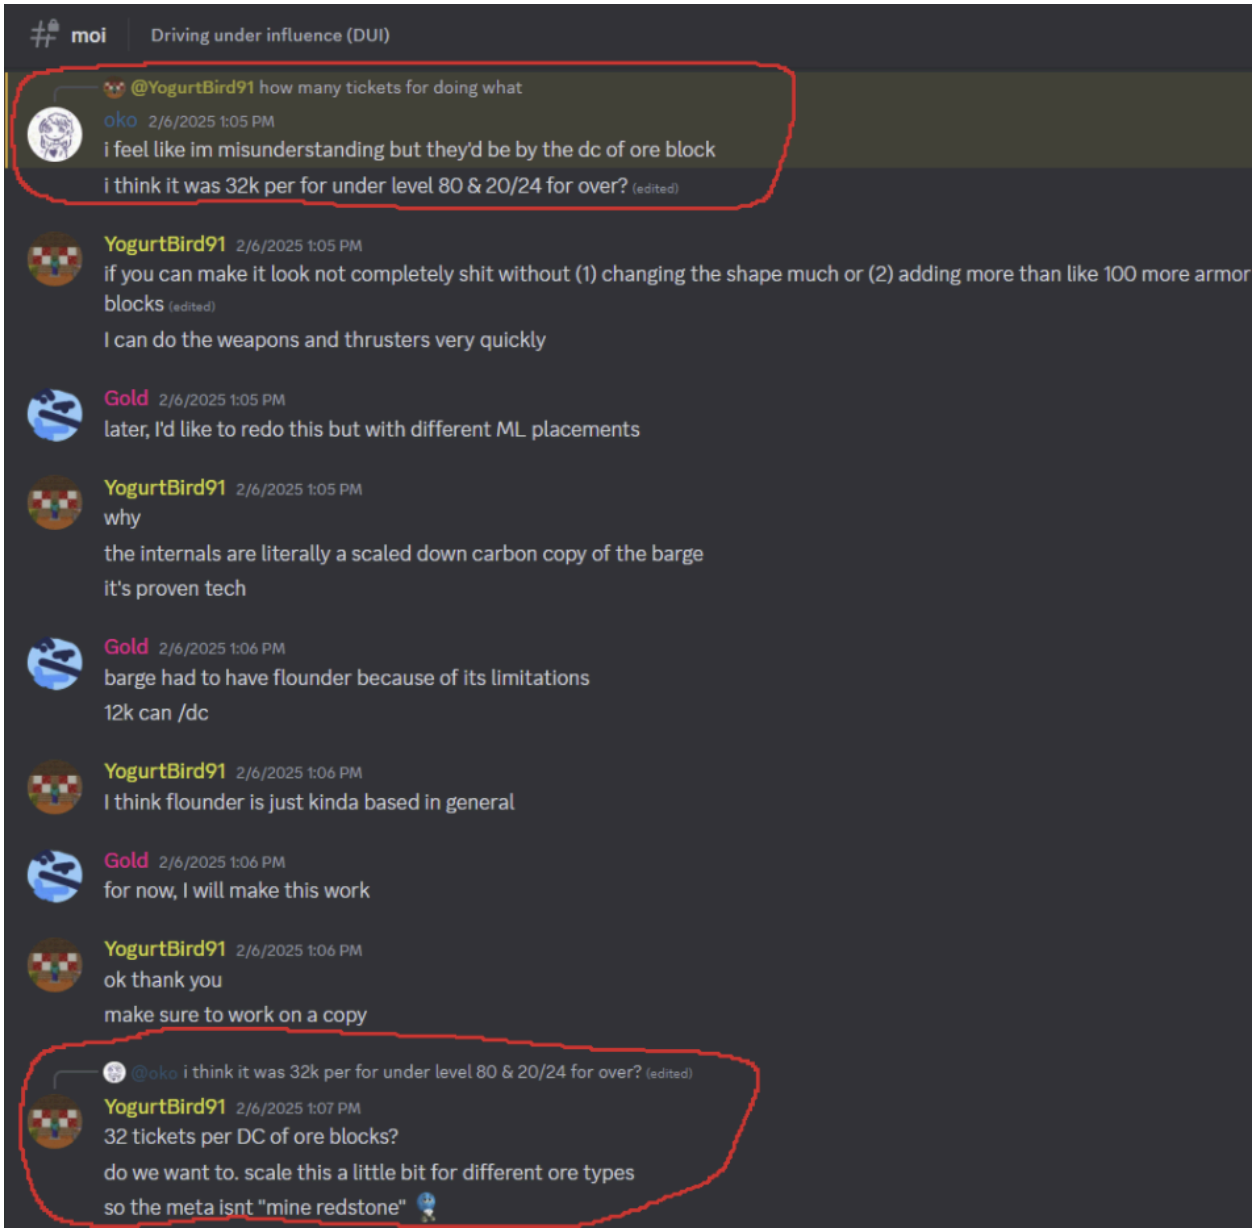
IceCarim:
I have no involvement in this case, but because it's the first time an interlocutory order could be made, I want to make everyone aware of their procedural rights:
An order made during the trial — an interlocutory order ie not a final order— is only appealable in certain circumstances (which our courts have not yet decided). Usually, they will be appealable if they can cause irreparable harm or have a final effect in themselves. The ultimate touchstone is the interests of justice.
As always, there is the right to request an appeal against a final order.

CommradePotatoe:
your input is welcome chief justice, thank you.
also, I'd like to ask both parties what time this transaction occurred?
also, around how many double chests of cheth were provided, and how much was jeff paid?
I will be at work until 8, submissions are welcome but my ability to respond will not be guaranteed

Oko:
@CommradePotatoe edit records do not seem to be logged for posts inside threads, but the thread itself (provided by the MoS)
Image
and we have approved the release of the following messages from the now-decommissioned No Access channel which mentions the use of DC blockstacks, confirming intent



Oko:
This should hopefully be clarified by future legislation regarding juristic entities, but the word order was placed by the AG on behalf of the cabinet, with the AG providing ore processing and logistics to meet treasury reserve quotas.
it was sometime last night :blueone~2:
regarding the volume, 5dcs of chetherite items were provided, of which the payment of ~44k was paid



CommradePotatoe:
Thank you.
@Troll_Bebek, did you visit the "root thread" at all?
barring the linked root thread, would you describe the procurement post as clear in its terms?

Troll_Bebek
I did not

CommradePotatoe:
I think the first question this court has to answer is whether it’s reasonable to expect someone to follow the procurement post to the root thread, or should this court judge the procurement post on its own.
I will invite submissions from both parties on this question
@Troll_Bebek @Oko
Thank you.

Oko:
I believe that the listing is pretty clear on instructions (it's the first thing listed in the post) - if root threads are too complex for someone to follow i would not expect them to be able to command an HF miner and procure the requested resources

CommradePotatoe:
2 things
What do you mean by device type? Maybe I'm tripping out, but I'm confused as to what you are referencing in the listing.
My hang up is that the procurement post doesn't indicate that the root post is in anyway "required viewing" beyond the name "root thread" (which in my view, may not come across as a "source" or "important link" for someone who isn't well versed in compsci).

Oko:
I did that thing where you're typing two things at once and swap words
:blueone~2:

CommradePotatoe:
Another question I’d like to ask both parties is whether it’d be reasonable for someone to expect Cheth to cost as much as the listing posted?

Oko:
i believe when purchasing cheth in bulk and equipment is provided to the mining party this is well above the normal rate of pay

Brick_WallGaming:
This sort of thing dosent really happen on HE so this kind of sets a new precedent
I do think it's a completley reasonable ammount of pay though as it's quite comparable to crating

Yodabird19:
to be clear - do youmean that the intended rate (80k per DC of blocks, which is 1h work in a barge or 2h in a heavy freighter) is comparable to crating?
or bebek's claimed rate which is 9 times that

Brick_WallGaming:
Intended

CommradePotatoe:
I apologize, I should have been more clear. Do you think it would be reasonable for someone to think that the misinterpreted rate (80k credits per dc of regular cheth items) was the actual rate
I'd also like to ask the plaintiff (@Troll_Bebek) whether you experienced any doubt regarding the rate before turning in your chetherite
Furthermore, do you describe yourself as a new player @Troll_Bebek ?

Oko:
i think in a normal national context that would be patently absurd, but its not unreasonable to believe that CDM would offer high wages near that pricepoint

CommradePotatoe:
I will begin writing my decsion in this case, however submissions from both the plaintiff and the defendant are still welcome and will be considered

Troll_Bebek:
Sorry will respond to this & what you posted earlier soon

Was printing oko's ship order until like 2am and then by the time I checked discord I was gonna pass out lmao

CommradePotatoe:
hey its late, but seeing as Im wrapping up my decision, I'd like to reply to this incase you still plan on replying

Troll_Bebek:
Gimme like ~10
Driving

CommradePotatoe:
sure

Troll_Bebek:
Somewhat, however I know CDM has been known for doing sort of "flash deals" in regards to certain projects or things they need now
Honestly yeah, even though I started the server over a year ago, I only have ~40hrs on it since I started, and I would say half of it was probably sitting afk as there isn't any afk protection.
I still require explanations on a lot of mechanics I haven't used before, and while I pick up on them quickly, i wouldn't count myself as experienced and am still a newfriend

CommradePotatoe:
thank you bebek
could you elaborate on this a bit more? did you think the price was unreasonably high?

Troll_Bebek:
Not necessarily, I do feel like the amount the government pays for things can vary quite a lot depending on the day
I do think it was high, but didn't seem too absurd to me especially after mining cheth in a HF (~1 dub of cheth item (not block)) took ~20min

IceCarim:
@CommradePotatoe may I ask a question

CommradePotatoe:
sure

IceCarim:
How did you find out the offer was for blocks?
(Eventually)

Troll_Bebek:
I was told after I turned it in
:cortesiangel:

IceCarim:
@oko has anyone else turned in blocks for this deal?
And did they have any misunderstanding?

Troll_Bebek:
(Before I did)

IceCarim:
Did you make it known that you thought the deal was for items?

Troll_Bebek:
Yeah lol

IceCarim:
And what was the response?

Troll_Bebek:
That it was for blocks

IceCarim:

Do you think you'd have gone to the effort of mining the cheth if you knew from the beginning that the deal was for blocks?

Troll_Bebek:
no probably not, as I'm working on a project for yodabird rn that requires cheth & gathering it will by far require the most amount of time and effort compared to the rest
I would have probably just done other things

Oko:
no

IceCarim:
If I talk about "cheth", would you naturally think I'm talking about items or blocks?

Oko:
blocks traditionally when one is buying them

IceCarim:
And is it any different from if I talk about diamonds or gold or iron
Do players usually buy cheth items or blocks from bazaars?
Or is your suggestion that the offer implied that you required supply in bulk, so one would think blocks?

Brick_WallGaming:
i dont think if players buy cheth from bazzars is relevent to this case
The ore mined here is not for re-selling it's to streingthen the national stockpile or moreso, how players buy cheth, my apologies

CommradePotatoe:
hey I see a lot of people typing

Yodabird19:

cheth bought on bazaars is at nosebleed prices because the main reason to buy cheth on the bazaar is because ur stranded in space with no fuel

Brick_WallGaming:
^

IceCarim:
I'm trying to understand what people normally understand by the word "cheth" used alone
But I understand this of course

Yodabird19:
meanwhile we have the lowest marginal cost to produce cheth of any nation on the server

IceCarim:
It's not irrelevant, because it does inform what people understand by the word "cheth" in commerce

Troll_Bebek:
if I hear the word cheth I think item because it goes in space ship jump fuel fly :thumbsup~2:

Brick_WallGaming:
k
oops lol
was control-k'ing sorry lmao

CommradePotatoe:
Im gonna ask that submissions stay on topic to ices question about whether someone would think cheth item or block
thank you :)

IceCarim:
Thanks for indulging me btw. Those are all my questions

CommradePotatoe:
thank you. bebek's and oko's responses will be considered

Yodabird19:
I will also point out that even at exploitative bazaar rates (going off Sherbet_S's listing for cheth at 14.9c/item on Hegemony bazaar, which afaik is the competitive rate), one dub of cheth items (54*64 items) would only go for 51494c which is far less than the alleged misinterpreted value of 80000c from wage-page which we would expect to pay at a lower rate than bazaar rates (even despite our nation's explosive economic growth) on account of the aforementioned disparity between production and consumption values of chetherite (as well as our nation's low marginal cost to produce chetherite even comparatively)

CommradePotatoe:
Thank you yoda

Oko:
cz is requesting yodabird and brick not interfere with legal due process

IceCarim:
Sorry one more question @Troll_Bebek: considering that the government usually buys dubs, would it be reasonable to conclude that if it asks for cheth it’s asking for the most voluminous form that cheth takes (ie blocks)?

Troll_Bebek:
I was unaware the government buys dubs, as this was my first time ever mining or turning in resources

CommradePotatoe:

A question id like to pose to both @Troll_Bebek and @Oko is if enforcement of the 80k per dub of items rate would be unnecessarily unfair towards oko and the alenarith group

Troll_Bebek
The only things I've ever done ingame before were SvS, AI hunting, and printing warships

IceCarim:
But didn't the advert itself say the deal is for dubs?

Oko:
the root thread did

CommradePotatoe:
furthermore, would it be unfair to bebek if we didnt enforce the rate in line with what he thought he was owed

Troll_Bebek:
no

CommradePotatoe:
could you expand on your reasoning :cortesiangel:

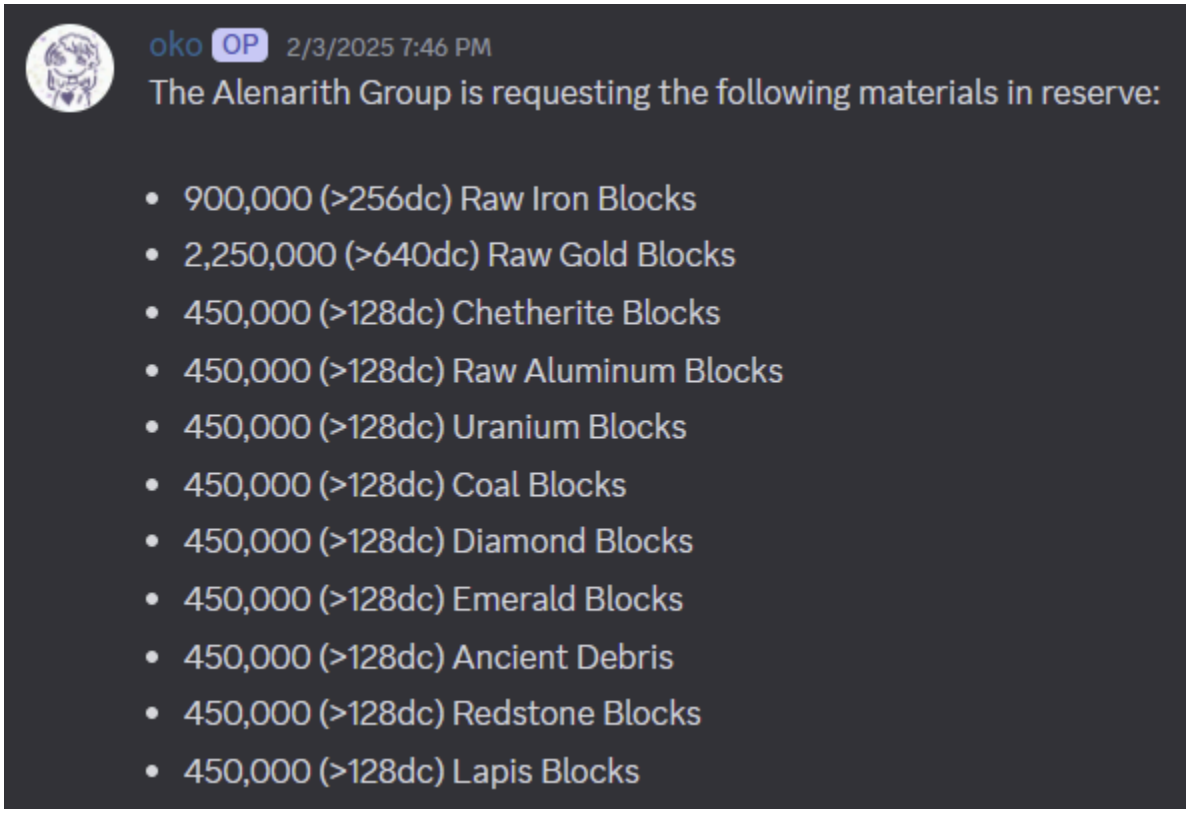
Troll_Bebek:
I would hope that regardless of who made a case, it would be litigated the same

Also I think despite it was me who pointed out the misleading wording, it's still misleading & other people could be confused by it too

CommradePotatoe:
thank you
I'm going to welcome submissions from both oko and jeff on my questions, but its past 3:30 and I need to sleep.

it looks like my decision shall wait another day.
Im not sure when I will be available tomorrow, but I should be able to finish the decision tomorrow night barring more submissions

Yodabird19:
Noting for the benefit of the Court on behalf of the Cabinet that the ore exchange root thread in wage-page has been updated to set clear rates of 100k/dc of ore blocks for most ores. This is not done with relation to this lawsuit, but simply because rates were previously not set for many ores. In the interest of good faith, provided below is a screenshot of its state as of the evening of 3/10:



CommradePotatoe:
Thank you.
@Oko @Troll_Bebek I'd like to reiterate a question I asked earlier, but I'd like to include this screenshot.

Would enforcement of this contract, by either rate, be unfair to the other party? What is the threshold for excessive unfairness?

(3) When considering the enforceability of a contract, a Court must have regard to—

(a) the terms of the contract, viewed objectively;

(b) the particular circumstances of the parties;

(c) whether enforcement of a particular obligation would be excessively unfair;

(d) whether enforcement of a particular obligation is motivated by bad faith;

(e) any other relevant contextual factors.

Should this court be concerned about setting low bar for excessive unfairness? Would that give courts in the future too much power to interfere with people's right to contract?
Another question, if this court decided to uphold the alenarith group's interpretation, should some type of fine or restitution be imposed against them for potential drafting negligence?
also, could i ask both parties for their credit balances? @Oko @Troll_Bebek

Troll_Bebek:
I just got to work but I believe it's ~300-380k
(I'm in Europe and start work at 0600 :glaughingcrying:)

Yodabird19:

Balance of Troll_Bebek: C458,791.02

for whatever reason /bal usenet is giving error player not found so i will wait for @Oko to log on and /bal herself :blueone~2:
unless it hasn't changed much since the 2/28 survey in which case

usenet	SetraMaria	CortesiaDelMar	461905	PLAYER

Oko:

its like 40k

IceCarim:
Cortesian Forbes

Troll_Bebek:
I don't really think either rate is "unfair" per se, my main point was moreso that the wording on it was unclear from what I believed the contract was saying yeah but you're also lv80+ and depo all your money to nbal, so it's not like 100% comparable

IceCarim:
oko accused of being depo baby

CommradePotatoe:
what I was getting at was if we enforced your intreptation onto the alenarith group, would that be unfair towards them

Oko:
yeah i think the court needs to define what amount of interpretation is acceptable on a work order

Troll_Bebek:
imo no because CDM gov seems to pay things with wildly different payment scales

CommradePotatoe:
well we either enforce bebek's intrepreted rate, or oko's intended rate

Troll_Bebek:
For example, printing the order of 100 ships, was paid out 250k (total work time of ~15-18 active hours), while something like printing SM was paid out basically the same for a lot less active time
CommradePotatoe:

to set a line inbetween would be interfereing with your rights to contract

Troll_Bebek:
we need a minimum wage act
Or clearing anthill, which took like 1.5hrs

IceCarim:
@CommradePotatoe if I may, Madam @President do you concede that the work order is ambiguous?

Yodabird19:
(was)

IceCarim:
“It depends on what the meaning of is is”

Oko:
I will defend my prior position and say that the work order could reasonably be interpreted as blocks

IceCarim:
The question is whether it can reasonably be interpreted as items or could

Oko:
i suppose a sufficiently incompetent individual may misinterpret the work order, but I would ask the court if that is the responsibility of the dispatcher to account for

CommradePotatoe:
since the alenarith group was issuing the work order on behalf of the government, are the funds for the work order coming from the n-bal? or somewhere else?

Oko:

due to the way i handle personal wealth I can either take it from nbal or farm it during the next signal :cortesiangel:

IceCarim:
Either way, would you describe it as you personally (or Alenarith group rather than the nation) bearing the cost?

Oko:
ah, then me, as I will be replenishing any potential cost

IceCarim:
Thanks that’s a helpful answer
Sorry for intruding @CommradePotatoe — nothing more from me

CommradePotatoe:
Im inclined to say yes. A contract should be explicit and clear. When there is a disagreement as to the meaning of a contract, it becomes the duty of the court to interpret it according to what a reasonable person would think, and enforce that interpretation. If a dispatcher/drafter doesn't want that to happen, their language should be clear as to leave no other interpretation possible do you think it would be unfair, and excessively so, to enforce the contract according to bebek's rate, against you?

Oko:
I decline to comment

CommradePotatoe:
thank you.

IceCarim:
@CommradePotatoe congratulations on this impressive feat
As is customary, the Court informs any interested party that an appeal (or cross-appeal) to the Supreme Court may lie against the judgment.
Oko:

```
[+ survival] Troll_Bebek
[83] {$20}  Saturn » I'm not done growing btw
Ally Radiance Dominion Mod  Diena1rah » until i feel like they are ready [25] Mod  Diena1rah » wb
[68] Troll_Bebek » Hello Horizons end
C356,000 has been sent to Troll_Bebek.
[3] IamJeb_ » saturn arent u like 22
[25] Mod  Diena1rah » you are a rich man
[12] od03 ★» keep telling urself that saturn [83] {$20}  Saturn » I'M FUCKING 15 WHAT [12] od03 ★» saturn is 12 u bot
[me -> Troll_Bebek] die btw
```

IceCarim:
cool resource pack

Oko:
thanks but thats my terminal at work :blueone~2:

CommradePotatoe:
Thank you
This case is now closed
@Oko @Troll_Bebek id like to inform you that you both may appeal this case to the Supreme Court
Oh he already informed yall

Troll_Bebek:
I can appeal it? i could do the funniest thing.....

IceCarim:
you could have cross-appealed the 2 month time period to pay, for example but that might be moot now since oko has already paid

CommradePotatoe:
Im going to be closing access to this channel now. Thank you for your submissions. What a ride

Brick_WallGaming:
07
IceCarim:

Any appeals should be noted in requests within 7 days (delays may be condoned on good cause shown)

(end)